Vendor Profile

Migliorelli Farm
Established 1933
Tivoli, New York
Owned by Ken Migliorelli

In 1933 Angelo Migliorelli immigrated to New York from the Lazio region of Italy, bringing with him broccoli raab seeds. Soon after settling in the Bronx he and his son Rocco started a small farm and peddled their vegetables by horse and cart up and down the streets, sun up to sun down.

Eventually when Co-Op City pushed the last of the farmers out of the Bronx, Rocco moved his family and his passion for farming to the Hudson Valley. Now in its' 3rd generation, Migliorelli Farm, run by Rocco's son Ken, is growing over 130 different varieties of fruits and vegetables on 400 acres.

Migliorelli Farm is one of the largest regional farms specializing in Italian produce like- broccoli raab, arugula, fennel and dandelion greens!

A fun fact: The broccoli rabe grown on Migliorelli Farm is the same strain of seed that Ken Migliorelli's great grandfather Angelo brought over from Italy in the 1930's!
